

Core Skills Analysis

English

- The 9-year-old student gained a better understanding of the structure of a newspaper article, including the headline, byline, and body.
- They improved their vocabulary by learning new words commonly used in journalism and news writing.
- The activity helped them grasp the concept of writing in a concise and informative manner, focusing on the 5 W's and H (who, what, where, when, why, how).
- Through this, the student also developed their critical thinking skills, as they had to select and organize information in a logical sequence to create a coherent news story.

Tips

Engage your child further in newspaper article writing by encouraging them to brainstorm story ideas from everyday experiences. Have them practice interviewing skills by role-playing different scenarios. Additionally, provide opportunities for them to edit and revise their articles for clarity and accuracy.

Book Recommendations

- Extra! Extra! Read All About It: A Newspaper History for Kids by Larijo Metz: This engaging book introduces young readers to the world of newspapers, from their history to how they are created, perfect for budding journalists.
- The Young Writer's Guide to Getting Published by Kathy Henderson: An informative guide for aspiring young writers, providing tips on how to get their work published and showcasing examples of successful young writers' articles.
- Don't Check Your Brains at the Door: A Christian's Guide to News and Views by Josh McDowell and Bob Hostetler: This book offers insights on critical thinking and discernment in interpreting news, suitable for young readers navigating media messages.