

Core Skills Analysis

Early Childhood Development

- The 1-year-old learns about physical movements and coordination while pushing the doll stroller around.
- The activity promotes language development as the child may engage in pretend play, talking to the doll or making sounds while playing.
- Playing with dolls in a stroller can enhance social skills as the child learns about caregiving and interactions with the 'baby' doll.
- Cognitive development is stimulated as the child imitates real-life activities and problem-solves during the play.

Tips

Encourage imaginative play by introducing different scenarios such as going to the park or grocery shopping with the dolls in the stroller. Use simple props like small blankets or toy food to enhance the play experience. Ask open-ended questions to spark conversation and creative thinking during playtime. Don't forget to praise and encourage the child's efforts to boost their confidence and engagement.
