

Core Skills Analysis

Reading and Comprehension

- Mila practiced decoding words independently, improving her fluency and word recognition skills.
- She engaged with the text, which likely helped her develop comprehension strategies such as making connections and visualizing.
- Through her choice of reading material, Mila exercised autonomy and personal interest in literacy development.
- This activity also supported vocabulary growth as she encountered new words in context.

Tips

Encourage Mila to extend her independent reading by discussing the stories she reads to deepen comprehension. Try having her summarize what she read or predict what might happen next in the story. Incorporate creative projects such as drawing scenes or writing alternative endings to homework. Additionally, encourage exploring different genres or authors to expand literary exposure and foster a love for reading.

Book Recommendations

- Henry and Mudge series by Cynthia Rylant: A gentle series about a boy and his dog, perfect for beginning readers to engage with relatable stories.
- Magic Tree House series by Mary Pope Osborne: Combines adventure and history, encouraging curiosity and comprehension for young independent readers.
- Junie B. Jones series by Barbara Park: Humorous and relatable stories that help develop reading confidence and social understanding.

Learning Standards

- CCSS.ELA-LITERACY.RL.2.10: By the end of the year, read and comprehend literature, including stories and poetry, in the grades 2-3 text complexity band proficiently.
- CCSS.ELA-LITERACY.RF.2.4: Read with sufficient accuracy and fluency to support comprehension.
- CCSS.ELA-LITERACY.RL.2.1: Ask and answer such questions as who, what, where, when, why, and how to demonstrate understanding of key details in a text.

Try This Next

- Create a reading journal where Mila can draw or write short reflections about her books.
- Design a quiz with simple comprehension questions about the story plot and characters.

Growth Beyond Academics

Independent reading nurtures Mila's confidence and focus as she takes ownership of her learning. It also builds a sense of independence and self-motivation, important traits for lifelong learning.