

English Language Arts

- The child has learned to identify missing letters in words.
- They have practiced using the alphabet to fill in the missing letters.
- They have developed their spelling skills by figuring out the correct missing letters in words.
- The activity has helped them improve their letter recognition and phonemic awareness.

For continued development, you can encourage the child to create their own word puzzles where they remove a letter from a word and ask others to guess the missing letter. This will enhance their problem-solving skills and creativity. Additionally, you can provide them with word search puzzles or crossword puzzles that focus on missing letters, which will further reinforce their understanding of letter patterns and allow for more practice.
