

Music

- The child learned about the composer Edvard Grieg and his music through watching Little Einsteins.
- They were introduced to Grieg's famous piece "In the Hall of the Mountain King" and learned to recognize the melody.
- They gained an understanding of how music can be used to tell a story, as demonstrated in the episode they watched.
- They also learned about different instruments used in classical music, as they were showcased in the episode.

For continued development, encourage the child to explore more of Edvard Grieg's music by listening to his other compositions, such as "Morning Mood" from the Peer Gynt suite or the Piano Concerto in A minor. Encourage them to draw or paint while listening to the music, allowing them to express their emotions and interpretations through art. Additionally, you can introduce them to other classical composers and their works, broadening their knowledge of different musical styles and periods.
