

English Language Arts

- The child practiced storytelling by creating narratives and dialogues for the dolls.
- They developed their vocabulary by using descriptive language to describe the dolls and their actions.
- Through imaginative play, the child explored different writing genres such as fantasy, adventure, or mystery.
- By role-playing with the dolls, the child practiced their reading skills as they read aloud dialogues and narratives.

Encourage the child to take their doll play to the next level by creating a mini-drama or play. They can write a script, assign roles to the dolls, and even involve friends or siblings in a performance. This will not only enhance their storytelling abilities but also boost their confidence in public speaking and collaboration.
