

- The child learned how to shape and mold playdough to form the letter F.
- They learned about the concept of symmetry by ensuring both sides of the letter F were equal.
- The child practiced fine motor skills by manipulating the playdough to create the letter shape.
- They explored different textures and sensory experiences while working with the playdough.
- The child learned about the letter F and its sound through hands-on engagement.

For continued development, the child can explore creating other letters of the alphabet using playdough. They can also experiment with mixing different colors of playdough to create unique letter designs. Additionally, the child can try incorporating other materials such as beads or buttons to add texture and visual interest to their playdough letter creations.