

English Language Arts

- The child practiced descriptive writing by observing and describing the plants and flowers in the garden.
- They developed vocabulary and language skills by using words to describe the colors, shapes, and textures of the objects in the garden.
- The child enhanced their reading comprehension by reading signs, labels, or instructions related to the garden.
- They may have engaged in imaginative play, which can foster storytelling skills and creativity.

Encourage continued development by encouraging the child to write a story inspired by their play in the garden. They can create characters, settings, and a plot based on their observations and experiences. This will enhance their creative writing skills and allow them to further explore their imagination.
