

Art

- The child can analyze the visual effects and design elements used in the movie "Labyrinth" to create a visually engaging experience.
- They can explore the use of color and lighting to set the mood and enhance the storytelling.
- The child can discuss the costumes and makeup used in the movie and how they contribute to the characterization of the different characters.

English Language Arts

- The child can analyze the plot structure of "Labyrinth," including the exposition, rising action, climax, and resolution.
- They can examine the character development throughout the movie and identify the protagonist, antagonist, and supporting characters.
- The child can practice summarizing the story and expressing their personal opinions about the movie in a written or oral format.

Music

- The child can explore the musical elements in "Labyrinth," such as the use of different instruments, melodies, and rhythms to create mood and enhance the storytelling.
- They can identify and analyze the songs in the movie and discuss how they contribute to the narrative and character development.
- The child can experiment with creating their own music inspired by the movie using simple instruments or digital tools.

Science

- The child can learn about optical illusions and how they are used in the movie to create magical and surreal visuals.
- They can explore the concept of maze design and how it relates to problem-solving and navigation.
- The child can research and discuss the use of animatronics and puppetry in creating the creatures and characters in "Labyrinth."

Social Studies

- The child can learn about different mythologies and folklore that inspired elements of "Labyrinth," such as the Greek myth of the Minotaur and the concept of a labyrinth as a symbol of a journey.
- They can explore the historical and cultural significance of mazes and labyrinths in different civilizations.
- The child can research and discuss the influence of Jim Henson, the creator of "Labyrinth," on the world of puppetry and children's entertainment.

To further develop their learning from watching "Labyrinth," the child can engage in hands-on activities. They can create their own puppet show or short movie using puppets or clay figures. They can experiment with different lighting techniques and visual effects to create their own magical scenes. Additionally, the child can research more about the mythology and folklore that inspired "Labyrinth" and create their own artwork or story based on those themes.

Book Recommendations

- Labyrinth Lost by Zoraida Córdova: A fantasy novel about a young girl from a family of brujas who accidentally sends her family into another realm and must navigate a labyrinth to save them.

- The Maze Runner by James Dashner: A dystopian novel where a group of teenagers is trapped in a maze and must find a way to escape while uncovering the secrets of their existence.
- The Giver by Lois Lowry: A classic dystopian novel about a society where emotions and memories are suppressed, and a young boy discovers the truth and seeks to bring change.

If you click on these links and make a purchase, we may receive a small commission.