

English Language Arts

- The child has learned proper sentence structure and punctuation through the typing exercises.
- They have improved their spelling and vocabulary as they typed different words and sentences.
- They have developed their reading skills by typing out passages and sentences.
- By completing typing exercises, the child has also enhanced their writing skills and typing speed.

For continued development, encourage the child to write creative stories and essays using the typing skills they have acquired. They can also practice typing and editing their own work to improve accuracy and speed. Additionally, incorporating typing games and challenges can make the learning process more engaging and fun.
