

English Language Arts

- The Sixth-grade child has improved their spelling and vocabulary as they practice typing words and sentences accurately in Typing Jungle.
- Through typing exercises, the child has enhanced their writing fluency and speed, which can positively impact their composition skills.
- By engaging with various prompts and texts in Typing Jungle, the child has developed their reading comprehension as they type responses and interact with the content.
- The activity has also fostered an understanding of grammar and punctuation rules as the child types sentences and corrects errors in their typing exercises.

Continued development can be encouraged by incorporating writing prompts that require creative and critical thinking. Encouraging the child to type their own stories, essays, or journal entries can further strengthen their writing skills while also improving their typing proficiency.
