

History

- The student learned about the history of the Chinese Gardens of Friendship in Sydney, understanding its origins and cultural significance.
- They gained knowledge about the relationship between China and Australia, exploring the connections represented in the garden.
- They discovered historical elements within the garden, such as architecture, sculpture, and traditional Chinese design.

Social Studies

- The student gained an understanding of cultural exchange and international relations through the Chinese Gardens of Friendship.
- They learned about the customs, traditions, and values exemplified in the design and layout of the garden.
- They explored the concept of friendship and its significance in different cultures, reflecting on the implications of the garden's name.

After visiting the Chinese Gardens of Friendship in Sydney, the student can continue their learning by creating a scrapbook or a visual presentation about their experience. They can include drawings, photographs, and written descriptions of the elements they found most interesting. Encouraging them to research further about the history and cultural significance of the garden would deepen their understanding of Chinese-Australian relations and traditional Chinese design. Additionally, building a mini Chinese garden at home using small plants, stones, and miniature structures with the help of a parent could further reinforce their learning and creativity.

Related Educational Toys and Games

- LEGO Architecture Shanghai Building Kit by LEGO: This LEGO set allows children to build and learn about iconic landmarks in Shanghai, China, sparking an interest in Chinese architecture and culture.
- Chinese Checkers by Pressman: Playing Chinese Checkers can introduce children to the traditional Chinese game and promote strategic thinking and planning.
- China Puzzle for Kids by Intalex: This puzzle features a map of China, promoting geography knowledge and understanding of the country's layout and cities.

If you click on these links and make a purchase, we may receive a small commission.