

The Sahara Desert

The Sahara is the largest desert on Earth. It is very, very big, much bigger than many countries! It is also the hottest desert, which means it gets very hot during the day. The sun shines very brightly and the sand gets really warm.

But did you know that even though the Sahara is super hot during the day, it can get very cold at night? This is because deserts have no clouds to keep the heat in. So, when the sun goes down, the temperature drops a lot, making it chilly.

So, the Sahara is a place where you can feel both super hot and very cold—all in one day!
