

Hey there, young explorer! Did you know that our universe is like a big treasure chest filled with all sorts of amazing things? Among those amazing things are planets! Now, we have some pretty famous ones in our solar system, like Earth (where we live!), Mars (the red planet), and Jupiter (the giant with a big storm), but what about the lesser-known planets?

First, let's pretend our solar system is like a family of planets. In this family, we have 8 main planets that get most of the attention. But outside of our family, there are many other planets that we might not hear about too often. Some of these are called
