

Penguins have a special magical coat that keeps them warm when they swim in icy water. This coat is made from lots of tiny feathers packed tightly together and a layer of soft, thick fat under their skin. These work like a cozy jacket to keep the cold away and make sure penguins feel snug and comfy, even when it's freezing outside!