

How to Use a Tissue to Catch Semen During Masturbation: Step-by-Step

Using a tissue to catch semen during ejaculation is a straightforward process and can help with cleanliness and convenience. Here's a detailed step-by-step explanation focusing specifically on the ejaculation part:

1. Preparation: Before you start, have several tissues nearby so you don't have to reach around once you begin. Use standard facial tissues or toilet paper – something soft and absorbent.
2. Position the Tissue: When you feel that ejaculation is about to happen, take a tissue and place it gently over the tip of your penis. This is where the semen will be expelled, so positioning the tissue here will catch it effectively.
3. Ejaculation: As you ejaculate, the semen will be released from the tip of your penis and should land on the tissue you're holding in place. The tissue will absorb the fluid, helping to prevent mess.
4. After Ejaculation: Carefully remove the tissue from your penis. If you notice any semen on your skin outside the tissue, you can use additional tissues to wipe clean.
5. Disposal: Wrap up the used tissue(s) neatly to avoid any spillage and dispose of them in the trash. Avoid flushing tissues down the toilet as this can cause plumbing issues.
6. Clean Up: After disposal, wash your hands thoroughly with soap and water to maintain hygiene.

Note: Using a tissue in this way helps keep your surroundings clean and makes cleanup easier. Remember to use a fresh tissue each time and ensure your hands and area are clean before and after masturbation.
