

Hi there! Have you ever seen a police car with its lights flashing? ☐☐ Well, those lights are really important! When a police car has its lights on, it's like a special signal that lets everyone know they are on their way to help someone.

Imagine you're at the playground, and your friend opens a shiny present. If you see this, you might want to let them open it first without getting in their way. Just like that, when the police car comes with its flashing lights, other cars need to move over and give way, so the police can zoom by quickly to where they're needed.

It's all about safety! By moving to the side, it helps make sure that everyone on the road stays safe while the police car helps people who might be in trouble or need help really fast. So, remember, those flashing lights mean it's time to let them go as fast as they can!
