

Hey there! Did you know that police cars are really fast? They are built to drive quickly so they can help people in trouble or catch the bad guys who are causing problems.

When a police car is driving fast, it has special flashing lights on top. These lights are important because they tell other cars on the road to move over and let the police car zoom by. This helps the police get to the emergency or the situation that needs their attention as quickly as possible.

So, whenever you see a police car with its lights flashing, remember it means they are on a mission to keep everyone safe!
