

Police officers sometimes ride horses because horses are big and can help them see better in crowds. 1. Horses can go places where cars cannot. When there are a lot of people, the officers on horses can look over the crowd and see if everyone is safe.

2. Horses are friendly and calm. Many people like to pet and be near horses, so they can help police talk to more people.

3. Horses can help officers be seen. When they ride horses, the officers are taller and people notice them better, which helps everyone feel safe.

So, police on horses helps them keep everyone safe and have a good time, too!
