

Hi Oliver!

Let me tell you about a really cool place called Peru. It's a country located all the way in South America, which is the continent below North America where we live.

Peru is famous for its amazing sights, like the Andes Mountains and a special ancient place called Machu Picchu. Machu Picchu is an old city built by the Incas, a group of people who lived a long time ago. People visit it because it looks like a beautiful castle high up in the mountains!

Another fun fact about Peru is that it has a lot of different animals and plants because of its many different climates. You can find everything from rainforests to deserts there. Isn't that cool?

Peru is also known for its delicious food, like ceviche, which is fish cooked in lemon juice, and papa a la huancaína, a yummy dish made with potatoes and a creamy sauce.

If you ever want to go on an adventure, Peru is a great place to learn about history, nature, and tasty food!
