

Okay, imagine you're at a big fun fair with lots of people around! When you look up, you might see a tall person, like a friendly police officer, riding a big horse. Now, here's why that's really helpful:

1. High Up: When the officer is on the horse, they are much taller than everyone else. This means they can see over the crowd and watch out for any trouble or help people if they need it!
2. Moving Easily: Horses are strong and fast! This means the officer can get through the crowd quickly without getting stuck. It's like how you can move easily through a line of friends if you are hopping on one foot!
3. Attention: When people see an officer on a horse, they usually pay more attention. It helps everyone remember to behave and stay safe!

So, by being on a horse, officers can see better and move faster, helping keep everyone safe and happy at big events!
