

Okay, imagine you have a really big toy that you want to lift up high to put on a shelf. A truck crane is like a super strong robot arm on a truck that can help lift heavy things.

The truck has big wheels, so it can move around, and the crane part is like a big, long arm that can reach high up in the air. When we say it can lift something to any height, it means that the crane can make the toy go as high as you need!

Just like how you can stretch your arm to reach different places, the crane can stretch its arm to lift high and then lower it down safely. So, when you see a truck crane, just think of it as a super helper that lifts things way up!
