

Car races are really exciting because they are like a big game where super-fast cars go zooming around a track! Imagine cars roaring past each other, going faster and faster, and trying to be the first to cross the finish line. Just like you might race your friends on the playground, but much, much faster!

Sometimes, if a car has a little problem during the race, a tow truck comes to help. A tow truck is a special vehicle that helps pull broken-down cars to safety. It has a strong hook on the back to grab the car and take it somewhere it can be fixed.

Also, there might be a helicopter flying above the race! Helicopters can see everything from high up in the sky. They often watch the race and sometimes even help the race cars if there's an emergency. They might also film the race so everyone can watch later on TV.

So, car races are not just about the fast cars but also about the cool helpers like tow trucks and helicopters!
