

Okay, let's imagine we are going on an exciting adventure with a group of three-year-old friends! When we want to tell a story to little kids like you, we have to make it fun and easy to understand.

First, we start by choosing a simple story with colorful characters, like a brave knight or a magical princess. We use our imagination to bring these characters to life and make them feel real. For example, we can pretend you are the brave knight saving the princess from a dragon!

Next, we use funny voices and gestures to act out the story. We can make silly faces or use different voices for each character. This helps keep the little ones engaged and excited to see what happens next in the story.

Then, we involve the three-year-olds by asking them questions and encouraging them to join in the storytelling. We can ask them what they think will happen next or let them add their own ideas to the story. This makes them feel like they are part of the adventure!

Finally, we end the story with a happy and satisfying conclusion, like the knight rescuing the princess and everyone celebrating together. We can also sing a little song or do a fun dance to make the ending extra special!
