

A thirsty crow flies under the hot sun, searching for water. He spots a pitcher sitting on the ground and lands next to it. Inside the pitcher, he sees a little water at the bottom, but he cannot reach it. The clever crow picks up small pebbles one by one and drops them into the pitcher. As he adds more pebbles, the water rises, and soon, the crow drinks happily from the pitcher.