

Alright, imagine holding hands is like a special secret handshake that you do with someone you really care about. It's like when you give a friend a high-five, but with your fingers intertwined.

When two people hold hands, they are showing each other that they like each other and want to be close. It's like saying, 'I'm here for you,' without using any words. It makes both people feel happy and safe.

For example, when you hold hands with your mom or dad while crossing the street, it helps you feel secure because you know they won't let go and will keep you safe from any danger.

When friends hold hands while playing or walking together, it shows that they are having fun and enjoying each other's company. It's a way of saying, 'I like hanging out with you.'

So, holding hands is a simple but powerful way of showing someone you care about them and want to be close to them. It's a way of creating a special bond without having to say a single word.