

A cheetah's diet mainly consists of small to medium-sized animals. Here's a closer look at what they eat:

- Prey: Cheetahs typically hunt animals like impalas, gazelles, pigs, and small antelopes. These animals are great for cheetahs because they are fast, and cheetahs are the fastest land animals!
- Hunting: Cheetahs are very fast runners and can reach speeds of up to 60-70 miles per hour! They use this speed to chase down their prey. Unlike lions, cheetahs usually hunt alone or in small family groups.
- Timing: Cheetahs prefer to hunt in the early morning or late afternoon when it is cooler. They need a lot of energy, so they must be careful not to overheat.
- Feeding: After catching their prey, cheetahs need to eat quickly because larger animals, like lions or hyenas, might steal their food.

So, in summary, cheetahs mainly eat fast animals like impalas and gazelles and rely on their incredible speed to catch their dinner!
