By the end of this lesson, Jaidyn will have a deeper understanding of the importance of student empowerment from a homeschool perspective and will be equipped with knowledge and skills to effectively present at the International School Choice and Reform Conference. Additionally, Jaidyn will learn how to network and engage in meaningful conversations with various professionals in the education field.

Materials and Prep

- Notebook and pen for taking notes
- Access to a computer or tablet for research
- Printed maps or digital maps for travel planning
- List of questions for networking
- Information about micro schools (Acton Academy, Colossal Academy, Compass Academy)
- Beach gear (for the physical education component)
- Materials for a pop-up science experiment (simple household items)

Activities

- Research Project: Jaidyn will research the various micro schools visited and prepare a short presentation on their unique approaches to education. This will help Jaidyn understand different educational philosophies and how they empower students.
- Networking Role-Play: Create a role-play scenario where Jaidyn practices introducing themselves and asking questions to potential connections. This will help build confidence in networking situations.
- Beach Physical Education: Plan a fun beach day that includes physical activities like beach volleyball, frisbee, or swimming. This will help Jaidyn understand the importance of physical health and teamwork.
- Pop-Up Science Experiment: Conduct a simple science experiment using household items. Jaidyn can present the findings to family members, simulating the presentation aspect of the conference.
- Travel Journal: Jaidyn will keep a travel journal documenting the journey from Atlanta to Fort Lauderdale, including thoughts, experiences, and reflections on the trip and the conference.

Talking Points

- English: "Empowering students means giving them a voice in their education." This phrase emphasizes the importance of student agency.
