

Introduction: What Does Reconciliation Mean? (15 mins)

Begin by discussing the concept of reconciliation in everyday life. What does it mean to mend a broken relationship? What actions or attitudes are typically involved? Think about examples from history, literature, or personal experience where reconciliation was needed. Transition to the theological context: In Christianity, 'atonement' addresses the broken relationship between humanity and God. How might this reconciliation be understood or achieved according to Christian belief? Jot down initial thoughts.

Activity 1: Defining Atonement & Biblical Roots (30 mins)

Define Atonement: Research and write down a clear definition of 'atonement' specifically within the Christian theological framework. Consider concepts like sacrifice, reconciliation, redemption, and propitiation.

Biblical Exploration: Christians look to the Bible for understanding atonement. Read and reflect on the following passages, noting how they might relate to the concept of reconciliation with God:

- Leviticus 16 (The Day of Atonement)
- Isaiah 53 (The Suffering Servant)
- Mark 10:45 ('...a ransom for many')
- Romans 3:21-26 (Righteousness through faith)
- Romans 5:6-11 (Reconciled through Christ's death)
- 2 Corinthians 5:17-21 (Ministry of reconciliation)
- Hebrews 9:11-14, 23-28 (Christ as high priest and sacrifice)
- 1 John 4:9-10 (God's love and propitiation)

Discussion Prompt: Do these passages seem to present one single view of atonement, or are there different nuances and metaphors used? Note any recurring themes.

Activity 2: Journey Through History - Major Atonement Models (60 mins)

Throughout Christian history, theologians have developed different models to explain how they believe Christ's life, death, and resurrection achieved atonement. Research and summarize the following key historical models. For each, identify:

1. Core Idea: What is the central mechanism of atonement in this view?
2. Key Proponent(s) & Era: Who were major figures associated with this view, and when did it gain prominence? (e.g., Origen, Anselm, Abelard, Calvin, Gustaf AulÃ©n)
3. Metaphor/Analogy Used: What image or analogy helps explain it (e.g., ransom payment, legal satisfaction, battle victory, demonstration of love)?
4. Associated Bible Passages: Which scriptures are often cited in support?

Models to Research:

- Ransom Theory / Christus Victor (Early Church; Revival): Focus on Christ's victory over sin, death, and the devil, possibly involving a 'ransom' paid.
 - Satisfaction Theory (Anselm, Medieval Period): Focus on Christ satisfying the demands of

God's honor or justice offended by sin.

- Moral Influence Theory (Abelard, Medieval Period & Later): Focus on Christ's life and death as the ultimate demonstration of God's love, inspiring humanity to turn back to God.
- Penal Substitution Theory (Reformation Era - Calvin, etc.): Focus on Christ taking the punishment (penalty) that humanity deserved for its sins.

Discussion Prompt: Which model seems most prominent or familiar in contemporary Christian expressions you've encountered? Why might certain models gain or lose popularity in different historical periods?

Activity 3: Social & Historical Impact (30 mins)

The way a society or group understands atonement can influence its values, laws, and social structures. Consider and discuss:

- How might a 'Satisfaction' or 'Penal Substitution' view influence ideas about justice, law, and punishment in society?
 - How might a 'Moral Influence' view impact emphasis on ethics, social action, and demonstrating love?
 - How might a 'Christus Victor' view shape attitudes towards perceived evil forces or systemic injustice in the world?
 - Can you think of historical examples where theological debates about atonement might have intersected with social or political events? (e.g., Reformation debates, abolitionist movements drawing on themes of liberation).

Conclusion & Reflection (15 mins)

Review your notes on the different atonement models.

- Which theory or combination of theories do you find most compelling or resonant, and why?
- How does understanding the historical development of these ideas change your perspective?
- Summarize the key takeaway: Christian understandings of atonement are diverse and have evolved throughout history, using various metaphors (legal, relational, militaristic) to explain the concept of reconciliation with God through Christ.
